

Courtney Williams
Vice President/Private Client Services for Business Owners, Avenue Bank

Her responsibilities are as a Private Banker for small business owners, their families, and their employees.

Williams has lived in Williamson County for five years and has taken on leadership activities in local organizations, such as serving as a Board Member of the Franklin Firefighters' Charities Inc.; member of Grace Pointe Church; Williamson County-Franklin Chamber of Commerce member, currently serving on the Membership Committee; and My Friends House (2007-2008), serving as Chair of the Mardi Gras Ball.

In May 2011, Williams assisted Community First Bank and Trust in receiving the Philanthropy Award from the Nashville Business Journal in recognition of her various volunteer efforts.

Williams' banking education is extensive, including numerous course work and certifications with both the Tennessee Bankers Association and the American Institute of Banking. She feels there needs to be more complimentary educational programs for business owners, families, and students about banking and general finances.

An active community volunteer, Williams looks forward to serving Franklin with more volunteer opportunities. She stated: "I would love to gain even more knowledge on Williamson County's history and opportunities to grow our county and city."
